

A Psychosomatic Analysis of Dyspnea in Bronchial Asthma and its Immunomodulatory effects through Homoeopathy

(Advancements in Homeopathic Research, Vol. 5 No. 3, November 2020-January 2021, Date of Publication 2020/11/1, Pages no. 19-24)

R.Sitharthan¹, T.Abdurahiman²

¹Principal & Professor,

Department of Practice of Medicine,

National Homoeopathy Research Institute in Mental Health (NHRIMH), Kottayam.

Former Professor & HOD in Practice of Medicine & Research Guide, Vinayaka Missions Homoeopathic Medical College, Salem.

² Former Principal and Controlling Officer, Dept of Homoeopathic Medical Education, Govt of Kerala,

Former Professor in Organon of Medicine & Research Guide, Vinayaka Missions Homoeopathic Medical College, Salem.

Address for Correspondence:

Dr. R. Sitharthan

Vinayaka Missions Homoeopathic Medical College, Salem.

Mobile: 9443203174. Email: sitharthan.r@gmail.com.

Abstract

Respiratory diseases are one of the most common burdens to look into the health care system worldwide. It is known that bronchial asthma, acute respiratory infections, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, tuberculosis, and lung cancer are the five largest respiratory diseases which are global burden. Worldwide prevalence of Bronchial Asthma is estimated that around 235 million, among that South Asia is having higher affinity with an estimated one-tenth of global bronchial asthma cases living in India.^{1,2}