Abstract

Background

Pemphigus Vulgaris is an autoimmune disease of your skin and mucous membranes. Pemphigus Vulgaris lesions begins with blisters in your mouth and then on your skin or genital mucous membranes. It tends to be a long-lasting (chronic) condition, and some types can be life-threatening without treatment.

A 56 yrs old male patient was diagnosed with Pemphigus Vulgaris. He had skin eruptions which were painful and oozing honey like discharges. It begun with painful oral blisters, followed by skin lesions. He had taken allopathic treatment with no relief. After prescribing homeopathic remedy on basis on similimum with classical approach, the patient showed remarkable improvement.
